China falls into deflation as demand revival fails

Beijing: China's consumer sector fell into deflation and factory-gate prices extended declines in July, as the world's second-largest economy struggled to revive demand and pressure mounted on Beijing to release more direct policy stimulus. Anxiety is rising that China is entering an era of much slower economic growth akin to the period of Japan's lost decades, which saw consumer prices and wages stagnate for a generation, a stark contrast to the rapid inflation seen elsewhere. China's post-pandemic recovery has slowed after a brisk start in the first quarter as demand at home and abroad weakened and a flurry of policies to support the economy failed. REUTERS

Pakistan parliament 'set for dissolution'

Islamabad: Pakistan Prime Minister Shehbaz Sharif said he would advise the president to dissolve parliament, setting the stage for a national election as the country grapples with political and economic crises. The parliament's five-year term is due to expire on August 12, but this move would dissolve it three days earlier. "I will tonight advise the president to dissolve the parliament," the premier told parliament. He said he will start discussions with the opposition leader on Thursday to pick a name from candidate lists of both sides to nominate as caretaker prime minister. REUTERS

The X factor: Indian content creators raking in the moolah

GOOD MOVE, FINALLY. With ad revenue share payouts, X set to become a viable platform: Experts Indian content creators on X, formerly known as Twitter, have begun receiving ad revenue share payouts from the platform. This is part of the platform's global ad revenue share model, which lets creators get a share of the revenue from the ads that are served in their replies.

Experts believe this could lead to a surge in blue tick subscriptions in the country, and also end up making X a viable platform for content creators.

Abhishek Asthana, Co-Founder of Hood, and owner of @GabbarSingh, told businessline: "Unlike YouTube and Instagram, content creators on X were not being incentivised to create content on the platform.

"Hence, X had not really been their key choice for content monetisation. This will encourage a lot more creators to become active on the platform, and may help them earn a living. I believe with this strategy Elon Musk has made all content creators, who are getting payouts, as endorsers or salesmen of blue tick subscriptions." Eligible creators are users that are subscribed to X Premium, earlier known as Twitter Blue. They must have at least 15 million organic impressions on their cumulative posts within the last three months, have at least 500 followers, and a Stripe account, among other parameters.

"There will definitely be a surge in blue tick subscriptions, and content creators will work hard to hit the 15 million impressions-mark," said Asthana.

Angel investor and business strategist, Lloyd Mathias, said: "I think of all the moves made by Musk in the past year-and-ahalf, this one has been welcomed universally. This will definitely see creators gravitating towards X, and the platform will see an upward spike."

According to a recent re-

'POSITIVE SIGNS'

Ambika Sharma, Founder and MD, Pulp Strategy, said: "This is a new initiative and early signs are positive. Influencers who have received payments from Twitter have reported that they are seeing an increase in engagement with their followers.

"It is possible that this initiative will lead to more blue tick subscriptions. If influencers are able to create more highquality content and engage with their followers more effectively, they are more likely to attract blue subscriptions."

Meenakshi Verma Ambwani New Delhi

In a bid to bring social-media influencers under its guidelines, the Advertising Standards Council of India (ASCI) has decided to broaden the definition of celebrities. Influencers with a fan following of 5 lakh or more will now be considered celebrities.

The ASCI code now defines celebrities as individuals that get "compensated ₹40 lakh or equivalent value annually for appearing in advertisements or campaigns on any medium and any format or have a social media following of 5 lakh or more on any social-media handle"

Manisha Kapoor, CEO & Secretary General, ASCI

This widening of definition also comes at a time when the Consumer Protection Act puts the responsibility of due diligence on celebrities regarding the claims made by brands they endorse. This responsibility of due diligence has been put on endorsers, whether celebrities or not.

'SCENARIO DIFFERENT' "With the advent of social scenario is different. We have a range of personalities who are extremely popular on social media and share a close personal connection with consumers. These personalities affect the spending habits of consumers who trust them," Kapoor stated.

She added that to ensure protection of consumer rights, ASCI has decided to widen the ambit and now it includes all personalities who have a notable influence as celebrities.

TRUE TESTIMONIALS

According to the ASCI code, testimonials of celebrities must reflect their genuine, recent opinion, and must be based on adequate information or experience about the product or service being advertised.

The guidelines also mandate that celebrities conduct due diligence to ensure that claims featured in the advertisements can be objectively verified and substantiated. Celebrities, when called upon, also need to produce evidence of due diligence.

The code also stipulates that celebrities should not participate in the advertisement of a product, treatment or remedies that are prohibited for advertising under the Drugs & Magic Remedies (Objectionable Advertisements) Act, 1954, and the updated Drugs & Cosmetic Act, 1940, and Rules 1945 (Schedule J).
